Two 'Unknown Soldiers' Join the First

Memorial Day this year has special significance for all the servicemen who fought in our last two conflicts—World War II and the Korean War. Today near Washington, D. C., Arlington National Cemetery receives the bodies of two Unknown Soldiers, representing all the dead of those wars. In special crypts, at either side of the present Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, they will lie in honored companionship with the anonymous hero of World War I. Sketched above is the new look the Plaza will have with the addition of the two granite-capped crypts for the heroes of 1941-45 and of 1950-53. Over 200 tons of granite went into the construction of the new vaults whose tops are set flush with the ground.

Thousands File Past Caskets Of Unknown GIs

Nation Pays Tribute To Nameless Korean, World War II Heroes

WASHINGTON — The grateful living, in mourning and abounding pride, thronged by thousands Thursday to the side of the Unknown Dead home from the wars.

A single glowing rose, a giant wreath, a tear—these were but outward token of a nation's tribute to the nameless, fallen heroes of Korea and World War II. There was the greater homage of the heart, of silent prayers, of the presence of long, endless lines of ordinary Americans respectfully filing by flag-mantled caskets.

For a second day of acclaim, the two Unknowns lay in state in the great rotunda of the Capitol.

Offered Lives For Flag Like the Unknown Soldier of World War I, they offered up lives and names for the flag. Like him, they are known but to God.

Friday, they will be entombed beside this comrade, at Memorial Day services in Arlington National Cemetery. On behalf of a nation of which he is the chosen leader, President Eisenhower will speak in their honor and bestow on each the treasured Medal of Honor.

For the moment, the nameless dead found repose in the vast central hall of the Capitol, beneath its massive dome.

Footfalls Break Silence The only intrusions of the solemn hush were the footfalls of people passing reverently by, the hourly changing of the honor guard, the presentation of wreaths a solitary ceremony.

Exactly at noon, the lines were halted. Six to each bronze coffin, some wearing the Medal of Honor, men of all the military services trooped in.

A command rang out—the only words above a whisper all through the day: "Change over the caskets!"

Positions Reversed The pallbearers lifted them gently, that of the World War II Unknown from the black catafalque on which Abraham Lincoln had lain in state, that of the Korean dead from a duplicate bier.

The positions were reversed, that the Korean Unknown might have his hours of glory in the spot where the martyred Civil War President had rested.

Once again the procession of people started up. Once more, every few minutes, wreaths were placed before the caskets and earlier floral tributes were carried to a steadily growing mound of flowers massed along the west wall.

29 Oil Firms Indicted On Price-Fix Charges ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Twenty-nine oil companies, including many of the nation's largest, Thursday were accused by a federal grand jury of conspiring to fix the price of crude oil and auto gasoline.

Denials of wrongdoing came swiftly from several defendants. The Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, one of the first to comment, categorically denied that the company or any of its affiliates had violated the antitrust laws.

Similar denials came from the Texas Co., the Gulf Oil Corp., the Cities Service Co., the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, Humble Oil & Refining Co., and others.

The one-count indictment charged violation of Sect. 1 of the Sherman Antitrust Law. No individuals were named as defendants. The maximum penalty upon conviction is a fine of $50,000 for each defendant.

Tomlinson Is Named Recreational Director

Charles F. (Rusty) Tomlinson, 31, has been appointed director of city parks and recreation and also as manager of the Memorial Building, the city's community center.

The appointments, announced today following meetings of the City Park Commission and Memorial Building Board, are effective July 1 when Lee Burton, city recreational head, leaves for Clayton, Mo., to take over similar duties.

Mr. Tomlinson, who will receive $5,400 city salary annually, in addition to his pay as Memorial Building manager, is a native of Salem. He was recreational director at Xenia, O., for three years before returning to Salem a year ago to become assistant director.

He is a 1953 graduate of Wilmington College where he majored in physical education. He and his wife, the former Catherine Reed of Orville, have one daughter, Pamela. The family resides at 1215 E. Third St.

Plans are under way to secure an assistant director and efforts will be made to secure a trained worker through the National Recreation Association, New York City.

Mr. Burton will conduct a class for teaching play school procedures June 16-20 before leaving for his new position in Missouri.

General Accepts Coty's Offer Of Premiership

Full Powers Needed To Head Off Conflict, French Leader Says

PARIS (AP)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle agreed Thursday night to form a new French government but insisted he have full powers to head off civil war.

President Coty gave him the task with the grave warning to Parliament and all Frenchmen that their choice has narrowed to these alternatives:

De Gaulle or civil war. The National Assembly majority would have to do a revolutionary reversal to accept De Gaulle.

The towering general's rightist ideas and any spectre of authoritarian government are distasteful to the big blocs in Parliament, especially the key Socialists.

De Gaulle's Paris office said in a communique the powers he seeks are provided for in the constitution.

It quoted him further as saying:

"I do not know how to undertake the task of conducting (the business of) the state and the nation unless these indispensable conditions are given me with the frank and broad confidence required for the health of France, of the state, and of the republic."

The full powers he seeks would approach those of a dictatorship. He wants them to run for a period to be set by the National Assembly.

The general did not specify in accepting President Coty's offer of the premiership how long he hoped to run the country single handed.

But he previously had made known through his followers that

Thousands Swarming Over U.S. Highways

By The Associated Press Thousands of motorists swarmed over the nation's highways late Thursday in an early start on the three-day Memorial Day holiday observance.

The National Safety Council estimated more than 40 million motor vehicles will travel 10 billion miles in the 78-hour period from 6 p. m. local time Thursday until Sunday midnight.

The council also said 350 persons could die in traffic accidents unless extra care is taken during the holiday period.

An Associated Press survey, made for comparative purposes, showed 294 persons were killed in motorcar accidents in the 78-hour nonholiday period from 6 p. m. Thursday, May 15 to midnight Sunday, May 18.

The record high traffic toll for a three-day Memorial Day period was in 1955. The death count that year was 369.

Traffic safety officials in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Kentucky and Iowa developed a coordinated campaign to hold down traffic accidents. They agreed to enforce traffic regulations strictly on all motorists, regardless of home state.

Indiana called on 200 National Guard units to supplement state police. Wisconsin halted all highway construction over the weekend. Kentucky arranged periodic roadblocks to check for drunken drivers. Illinois enlisted aircraft to help spot violators, Iowa and the other states enlisted virtually all available police officers in the traffic safety drive.

Smith Pushing Foreign Aid Bill

Johnston Urges End To 'Global Handouts'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Enactment of President Eisenhower's foreign aid program as written was urged by a Republican senator Thursday while a Democrat called for an end to "global handouts."

The senators, H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) and Olin D. Johnston (D-SC), spoke in the second day of free-wheeling Senate debate on legislation authorizing a $3,712,000,000 foreign aid program for the 12 months starting July 1.

Efforts to cut the controversial measure were put off until next week.

Smith urged the Senate not to put a financial straightjacket on the President at a time of Communist-inspired anti-American outbursts around the world. He cited such demonstrations in South American, Lebanon and Algeria.

Declaring "we can expect lots of tough going in the future," Smith said this country will not react to the Soviet challenge by retreating or cutting foreign aid.

The Salem Board of Education has secured court approval of the transfer of $59,125.89 from an earned interest fund to the new high school construction fund.

This interest money, earned from the period between August, 1956, and June 30, 1957 can now be used by the board to help finance final construction improvements at the city's new $2 million senior high school near E. Sixth St.

Major Powers Secretly Seek Summit Talks

LONDON (AP)—The big powers are making a fresh approach to the summit—in secret this time. They hope diplomatic negotiations conducted behind closed doors will lead to a definite of possible areas of agreement in any subsequent meeting of heads of government.

For six months East and West have made their summit moves publicly through a series of letters, notes and speeches. But summit maneuvers being resumed now in Moscow are being played quietly.

A British Foreign Office spokesman told a news conference Thursday both East and West have agreed to keep the Moscow discussions confidential.

He declined to be drawn into any discussion of what British Ambassador Sir Patrick Reilly talked about with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko for 45 minutes Wednesday.

Reilly's conversation and the expected individual meeting of American Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson and French Ambassador Maurice Dejean with Gromyko revived summit discussions, dormant since May 5.

The Western powers have held all along that striking public postures on the summit question smacked of propaganda and that adequate preparation of a top-level meeting would take careful private diplomatic work.

In the past month there has been a halting of the Soviet technique of writing letters to President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan. In the Western view, this respite from the flow of letters has improved the chances for meaningful negotiations.

When we use the expression that someone "cries havoc" today, it means they forecast ruin for themselves or others. "Havoc" was a medieval war cry, used to order armies to pillage cities.

Leetonia Graduation Exercises Are Held

Daniel Friedberg presented the class of 1958, and Dr. P. W. Conrad, vice president of the Board of Education, awarded the diplomas.

The benediction was given by Fr. Braun.

pering with the security of the nation," he said.

Johnston called for a halt in the foreign aid program. He said that on balance it has "created mischief and distrust in the world, produced a reliance upon 'purchased' friends...and caused us to be scorned as suckers."

Referring to the recent mob demonstrations against Vice President Richard Nixon in South America, Johnston said, "Our globalists have been so busy shoveling out aid to Europe and Asia that we seriously neglected our American neighbors to the south."

He said he intends to offer an amendment to require that one-third of all U.S. aid go to South America. But, he said, "For the survival of America, I think nothing more is needed now than an end to foreign aid."

GM, UAW Fail To Give In Wage Talks

DETROIT (AP)—Both General Motors Corp. and the United Auto Workers doggedly held to no-budge stands Thursday in negotiations to write a new wage contract to replace one expiring at 11:59 o'clock Thursday night.

But the union said there will be no strike. And GM said it will continue operating under its own employment and working terms.

The bargaining picture was the same at Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. So were the operating prospects after company-union contracts run out there Sunday.

UAW President Walter P. Reuther returned to the bargaining table at General Motors for the first time since negotiations began two months ago. So did Louis G. Seaton, GM's vice president for industrial relations. But after two hours both agreed there had been no progress, despite their presence.

Reuther told newsmen at a recess: "We made no progress. The company still maintains its position to take it or leave it."

All three automakers have offered to extend for two years currently expiring three-year contracts. They provide annual productivity wage increases and contain pay escalators geared to the cost of living.

During the afternoon session the union formally proposed to GM President Harlow Curtice that current contracts be extended for a brief fixed period.

Reuther said this could be one, two, three weeks or a month at the company's option.

Previously the union had proposed, and GM refused, day-to-day indefinite basis.

Seaton, replying for Curtice, said: "The decision as to whether or not we extend the agreement will be made prior to the expiration of the agreement at midnight (Thursday) on the basis of the status of negotiations at that time."

Seaton said "We're getting tired" of Reuther's accusing GM of not bargaining in good faith, and added: "Collective bargaining doesn't mean we have to accede to all of the demands of the union."

he wants the National Assembly, habitually divided and split wide open now over the general's ascendancy, to adjourn for a full year.

It was in an atmosphere heavy with strife that Coty warned Parliament and the nation that only De Gaulle could save France from civil war now.

Within three hours, the general sped to the seething capital from his rural home for the third time in a week. Here he received, and accepted, the chance to head France's 26th postwar government.

The outcome still depends on the whims of the National Assembly, where feeling against De Gaulle runs high in leftist and center parties.

Former President Vincent Auriol charged that De Gaulle had encouraged secession in Algeria. That charge drew a 62-29 endorsement from Socialist deputies, a key group needed by De Gaulle in his quest for power.

Auriol, a Socialist elder statesman, made the charge in a letter asking De Gaulle's attitude toward the military insurrectionists in Algeria and on Corsica.

This, and a reassuring reply from De Gaulle, were studied by the Assembly. The general said his name had been used without his own involvement in Algerian developments. He pledged re-establishment of discipline among the armed forces as one of his aims.

Coty scheduled another round of meetings with dissident leaders in an effort to smooth a way for De Gaulle's investiture.

The general and the 76-year-old President were closeted in the Elysee Palace for 80 closely guarded minutes.

Coty had summoned De Gaulle through a virtually unprecedented message to the Assembly. Citing the threat of civil war, Coty said he would resign if the Assembly rejected De Gaulle.

Ohio Supreme Court Is Urged To Make Early SUB Decision

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Counsel on both sides of the Supplemental Unemployment Benefits (SUB) issue asked the Ohio Supreme Court Thursday for an early decision on the merits.

The court is expected to say next Wednesday whether it will review Mahoning County court decisions that Ohio jobless workers can draw SUB and state unemployment benefits at the same time.

Attorneys and high court judges agreed during oral arguments on two test cases that Constitutional questions are lacking but that the issue is of great public interest.

David E. Jones of Youngstown, counsel for four steel firms with SUB contracts negotiated by the AFL-CIO Steelworkers Union, said remuneration is a key question in both cases.

The union challenged a ruling by James R. Tichenor, administrator of the State Bureau of Unemployment Compensation, (BUC) that SUB payments are remuneration and must be deducted from state benefits.

Mahoning County courts reversed Tichenor and Atty. Gen. William Saxbe, counsel for the BUC administrator, appealed to the Supreme Court.

Would Pave Way For SUB

Refusal of the high court to review would let the lower court decisions stand and pave the way for thousands of workers to receive SUB payments.

SUB contracts are designed to augment state benefits so that jobless workers could receive about two-thirds of their take-home pay. Maximum state benefits are $39 a week for 26 weeks for unemployed workers with families.

If the Supreme Court agrees to review the two cases, another hearing will be held before judges hand down a decision on the merits.

"We would like an expeditious decision on the merits," Herschel Kriger of Canton, a Steelworkers' attorney, told the high court. "You don't want us to work all summer, do you?" Judge Charles B. Zimmerman asked in reply.

Gov. C. William O'Neill said he would call the Legislature into special session on or before June 30 regardless of whether the Supreme Court rules on SUB by then. He previously asserted the SUB issue should be settled before a special session so lawmakers would not be under pressure to consider it while litigation was pending.

The governor said a special session called to consider extension of the state jobless benefit period to 39 weeks would permit legislative action on SUB.

10% Eligible For SUB

John W. Hardwick, assistant attorney general, asked the Supreme Court to overturn SUB decisions and hold that Tichenor should have been sued in Columbus instead of Mahoning County where the steel firms are located.

Hardwick asserted only about 10 per cent of more than 2½ million Ohio workers eligible for state jobless benefits are covered by SUB contracts.

Joseph P. Kinneary, counsel for a Columbus steel fabricating firm and two other intervening defendants, said legalization of SUB would increase the company's payroll tax.

"We believe these three interveners represent a great majority of the people of Ohio," Kinneary added.

Kriger said statutes in 37 other states permitting SUB payments are similar to the Ohio law.

Recounting that SUB funds come from payroll deductions, Kriger said:

"The payments into the trust funds are remuneration but the payments to the unemployed workers are not; they are unemployment insurance."

Asked by Chief Justice Carl V. Weygandt if they could be both, Kriger said no.

Quizzed on Remuneration Zimmerman asked Jones whether the Legislature could settle the remuneration question.

"We believe that is a judicial question but we suppose the Legislature could amend the law," Jones replied. "Determination and decisions have been made in 37 other states with laws similar to Ohio that payments made are not remuneration."

Defendants in the Steelworkers' declaratory judgment suit besides Tichenor are these four steelmakers: United States Steel, Republic Steel, Youngstown Sheet & Tube and Jones & Laughlin.

Intervening defendants are the C. E. Morris Co.; Donald H. Smith, employee of Timken Roller Bearing Co.; and Richard H. Ward, employee of Westinghouse Electric Co., all of Columbus.

The steelworkers' case involves the jurisdictional question of whether Tichenor can be sued outside Columbus. The other case, rushed through Mahoning County courts last week, is clear-cut on the issue of SUB. It was brought by Joseph Posey of Youngstown, a Republic Steel employee, against Tichenor.

United in a Common Effort

In this brightest season of the year when we pay our respects to Americans who earned gratitude for their service to their fellowmen in wartime, we remember especially how they stood united in a common cause.

We see them marching down the long avenues of our lengthening history in the uniforms of all the wars they served in, dedicated in their minds and hearts to the principles they cherished.

We hear the marches that stirred them, the slogans that expressed their convictions and the songs they sang around their campfires. We remember the great and small battles they helped to fight.

Without them and the spirit that sustained them through hardships and suffering there could have been no America. That is why we pay our homage to them each year when Memorial Day comes.

They were the best we had, and they did the best we have done since Americans first shared the dream of achievement through co-operative effort.

They had the highest privilege, too — the privilege of working side by side in the advancement of human freedom.

For many, there never was any greater satisfaction than that of comradeship in arms. We think of that, too, on Memorial Day.

We think of what it meant to them as well as to us to have believed in something so profoundly they could die for it. We think of the sacrifice it has taken to build a nation and to make it the guardian of human freedom. And we are grateful.

There are wars still to be fought and battles yet to be won, perhaps not with the weapons of the past but with ideas and principles. We can only hope on another Memorial Day that we can stand united when our challenge must be met.

Sputnik III: A Weighty Problem

So quickly does the unprecedented become the commonplace that Russia's third earth satellite has been rocketed into orbit with less excitement than was stirred up by the recent rash of routine civil disorders in various parts of the world.

But it can be counted on as a certainty that there is no lack of excitement among U.S. rocketers whose offsetting success with earth satellites are still only a candle to the Russians' brilliant success.

Their third satellite weighs nearly 3,000 pounds, in comparison with the 30 pounds that represents the weight of the heaviest U.S. rocket — a ratio of 100-to-1, or something like the difference between running a 400-minute mile and a 4-minute mile.

What the U.S. rocketers are astounded by that cannot very well discuss is that Russia, which previously had thrust a half-ton satellite into orbit now has tripled that incredible weight with a ten and a half satellite.

This means that its rocket development, which astounded the world last fall, is continuing at a pace which leaves the United States so far behind as scarcely to be in the race at all.

There simply is no evidence in anything known about U.S. rocket development that this country's rocketers have the slightest idea of the source of thrust required to put one, whose great weight was incredible, into orbit.

Even more disturbing than what is not known about the kind of rocket power the Russians have used so far is the probability that the next Russian satellite will be even heavier, because the latest one in approximately three times as heavy as the preceding one, whose great weight was incredible.

The purpose of rockets is not, of course, to send earth satellites into orbit. Rockets are military weapons designed to span great distances — the ultimate weapon of international power politics. Putting earth satellites into orbit is little more than an exercise in rocket control — an exercise that has revealed a shocking disparity between the capabilities of the two great powers in what seems destined to become the definite weapon of all time.

Popularity Is Not the Problem

Vice President Nixon's strong views on Latin America, against the background of his first-hand experience, have made him the Eisenhower administration's "expert" in an area where Secretary of State Dulles seems willing to share his official burden.

Mr. Nixon plainly feels that whatever has been done, whether good or bad, had not been done well enough to make U.S. policy either well known or well thought of. Popularity is not the purpose of foreign policy, contrary to supersensitive souls who cannot stand to be disliked. But clarity is indispensable, and the United States has not achieved clarity.

One reason for its failure in this respect, according to Mr. Nixon, has been its failure to muster the facts. He believes U.S. diplomats have been spending too much time swapping pleasantries with the wrong people — a criticism reminiscent of the suspicion that all diplomats tend to become "coo-coo-pushers in striped pants."

Under Mr. Nixon's prodding and the prodding of many others who have been saying for a long time that the United States has been neglecting the New World for the Old World, there will be a shift of emphasis. The Soviet Union, which seems to be the pace-setter for the United States in the race for international power, has not been neglecting Latin America any more than it has been neglecting Asia, or Africa.

One danger looms if the United States decides to review its policy — the danger that its dollar diplomats will try to buy friendship. That would be futile. That is not what Latin Americans whose friendship is worth having want, anyway. They want investment money.

U.S. private investment without the protection of understanding to minimize the danger of expropriation by irresponsible government would become a bad risk. The huge investments already made would not be augmented by new investments.

This is why the evidence that Mr. Nixon saw first-hand of hatred for the United States needed by Communist riot makers cannot be disregarded. It is as ominous for the responsible leaders of Latin America as it is for the United States.

In the vice president of the United States, they have found a spokesman for their desire to reach a better understanding with the United States, which will require in turn a better understanding of Latin American problems by the United States.

Secretary of State Dulles seems willing to let Vice President Nixon take the responsibility.

Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

The de Gaulle, Nixon, Caracas and Sputnik issues are being overshadowed in American living rooms by the Von Nardoff issue. It is breaking up homes. Women's taunt "So you think men are smarter than women?" is echoing across land with husbands (back in shadow of own goal post) feebly countering with "We wuz drugged" and "Wait 'til next year." "Elfrida" has always seemed to be a name seen only on yachts, but Elfrida Von Nardoff has made it a top name in headlines through beating all records on airwave jackpot winnings.

She reached $166,500 a couple of weeks ago, beating Charlie Van Doren mark, and making pushovers of male scholars, teachers and brainy figures, quite a few from Harvard. "Just a photographic memory," and "There's mental telepathy in it somewhere," argue the men folks, some declaring, "The gal gets a longer count than Tunney," after some of her final split-second triumphs.

IN LAST COUPLE of weeks a Mr. Rein has had Elfrida on the ropes, but again and again she has staged a Silky Sullivan finish (pre-emptive style). Last week it was a $1,500 a point contest, and she could have lost $30,000 in the twinkling of an eye. Or twinkling of a IQ. It was a draw. Now she faces Mr. Rein for $2,000 a point. The crisis is approaching Derby money.

Will Elfrida be able to sing "It ain't gonna REIN no more"? And if so will she lower the nation's blood pressure, calm its people, help restore domestic peace and cheer all women by grabbing close to $200,000 and calling it a day? To date she has been saying, "I'll continue," with the nonchalance of someone playing pinball for bubblegum.

MAN'S IDEA of a female intellectual wizard wearing glasses, having a double chin and flat heels is getting a beating. Elfrida is easy on the eyes. She seems the type of brain that could also be fun at a cocktail party and go blithely to "Let's ring door bells" after answering, "How many seeds did Johnny Appleseed plant, and what was his best year?" When ya gonna quit, Elfrida? Will it take an injunction?

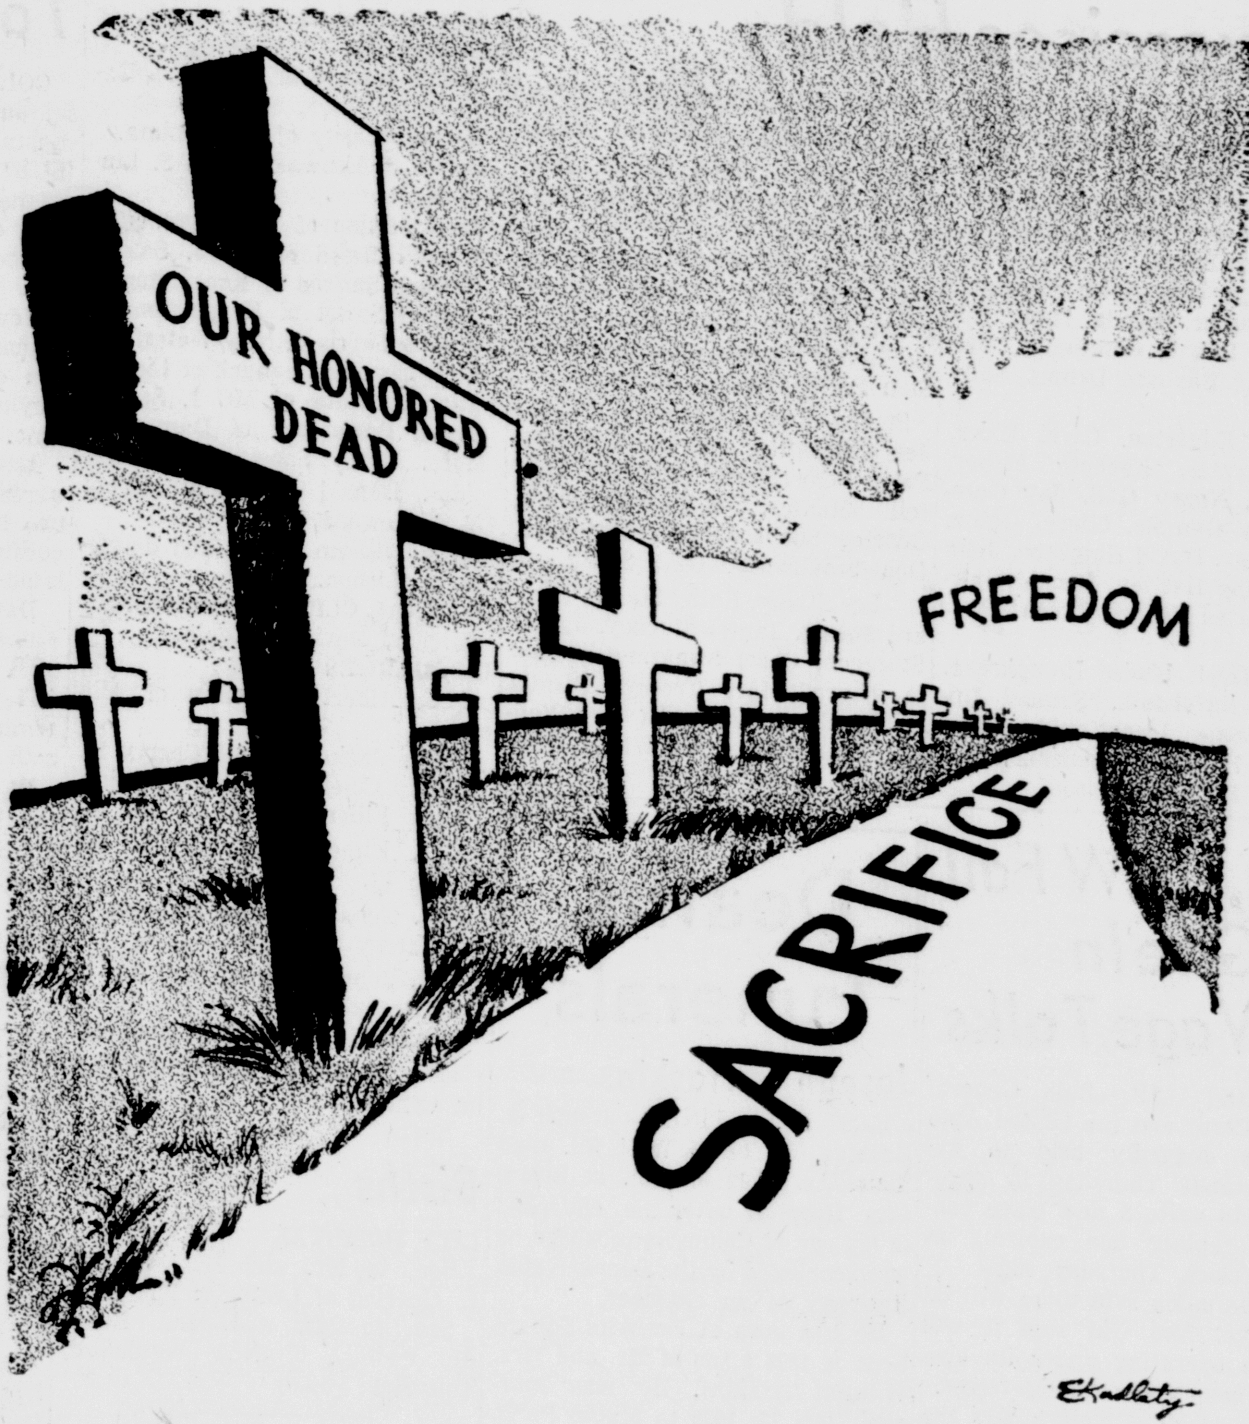

BZZY BAVASI, vice president of the former Brooklyn "Bums" is quoted as jumping on Duke Snider with "He no longer has the right mental attitude. I have no sympathy with him 'Izzat so?" screams Flatbush as one man. "Ya mean the right attitude is when O'Malley, the stockholders and others ignoring years of fan loyalty and wonderful tradition, whisked the club to the Pacific coasts? Is the right attitude shown only when the box office and the fast dollar are concerned? So you have no sympathy for a great ballplayer! How are you fixed for sympathy for the Brooklyn Loyal Rooters and the Simp-phoney band?"

Young Mr. Trujillo, son of the dictator, answering criticisms that the dough he blows in on Hollywood cuties comes indirectly from U.S. taxpayers through foreign aid to his dad, says he is wealthy in his own right. He is in Hollywood recovering from operation for nasal trouble. Is the trouble due to failure to obey the advice, "Keep your nose clean?"

Van Cliburn, pianist sensation, is a Texan. He plays big and takes his encores big, obviously. Why did TV ignore the Van Cliburn Broadway parade? Have some of its veeps apartments across the court from piano players who practice with windows open?

Government by Reuther

By RAYMOND MOLEY

To most of us, the expression "government by all the people" is just a phrase useful in patriotic speeches and an easy blind for demagogues. But it has a vital, deeply embedded truth which many of us are loath to recognize. Nothing so illustrates its validity so much as the innumerable examples in history of the corroding effect upon economic life produced by government by a class or political machine dominated by an oligarchy or a small but potent minority.

Perhaps leaders of the British Labor party would deny that the government that they conducted from 1945 to 1951 was in fact a minority affair. But they cannot deny that its basic nature was a dictatorship by the trades unions and the so-called intellectuals in the party.

The facts clearly show that its tinkering with the economic system and its threats to the British economy paralyzed initiative and frustrated recovery from the war. Michigan has had what is substantially a UAW government for some years. Time and again, candidates backed by the Reuther machine have swept the state. Practically all elective state offices are filled by people who owe their election to UAW support.

THIS POWERFUL machine, heavily financed by union funds and incredibly active on a year-around basis, has not only elected its man, Gov. Williams, over and over, but has now penetrated into counties and cities.

It has been obvious, because of the repressive character of Michigan's taxation and the many embarrassments suffered by private business, not only that industry is draining out of the state but that a new business prefers to go elsewhere—Ohio or Indiana, where there is no union-in-politics dictation.

It has also been evident that the vast political designs of Reuther are not limited to this one state but are stretching far over the nation.

For example, the UAW made a substantial contribution to the Hells Canyon Association, whose purpose was to build a great federal dam on the Snake River to provide a source of "cheap" power and draw industry from the Midwest, including Michigan.

Some time ago, Gov. Williams was forced to give some attention to the receding tide of Michigan's industry. His response was to set up a group of what he called "economic ambassadors" to sing the virtues of Michigan in other states and seek to bring in more industry.

THE PEOPLE selected by Williams as such "ambassadors"—utilities people, bankers, leaders of state educational institutions, etc.—were unable to refuse since their ostensible service would be to help the state and also because a state government so controlled has great power to make reprisals on the recalcitrant.

But there are plenty of small businessmen, farmers, and others in Michigan who are able to defy the governor and the political machine behind him.

Lawrence Love, a small manufacturer, recently inspired a meeting of people who are unhappy about Michigan's economic and political bondage. This meeting, held in Lansing, staged some plain talking and created what is called the "Citizens' Alliance to Build Michigan." Its program is to work for a "sensible" right to work law; less extravagance in state government; revision of the state tax structure and counteraction against union domination of politics.

Thus, while so much of Michigan's big business has and apparently still continues to sit on its political hands, smaller business and farmers are taking the aggressive course which is the only kind of opposition that people like Williams and Reuther can understand and fear. May their efforts carry over into other states threatened with the same sort of minority government.

Pendulum Has Swung Back in Picketing Cases

When a picket line blocks a worker from entering a factory, his right to work is interfered with and anyone naturally assumes that state laws provide a remedy. Yet, when the Supreme Court of the United States renders a decision to that effect, as it did this week, it becomes first page news and is a matter of general surprise.

The reason is that the Supreme Court in recent years, in decision after decision, has upheld the immunity of labor unions from punishment for most of the abuses which have caused nationwide complaint. Now that the court has ruled that, when a worker — even though not a union member — is prevented from entering the factory where he has a job, he may recover money damages from the union not only for lost pay but for any worry caused thereby, the pendulum has swung back in picketing cases to where it ought to have been for many years.

The court decided the case by a vote of 6 to 2, as one justice didn't participate. The dissenting opinion, however, written by Chief Justice Warren and concurred in by Justice Douglas, really contains a most interesting revelation.

The chief justice says that the man who was kept from working should not have been allowed to sue in a state court and that "there is a very real prospect of staggering punitive damages accumulated through successive actions by parties injured by members who have succumbed to the emotion that frequently accompanies concerted activities during labor unrest."

IT IS AMAZING that the chief justice would be willing to deny complete relief to an injured worker just because the precedent might thereafter be bothersome or annoying or costly to labor unions. Such solicitude is understandable when uttered by a labor partisan but it is surprising when it comes from a member of the highest tribunal, which is supposed to be impartial and primarily concerned with the law as written and not its political or economic consequences.

Curious reasoning is also revealed when the chief justice asks: "Must we assume that the employer who resorts to a lockout is also subject to a succession of punitive recoveries at the hands of his employees?" The answer is that every employer has always been subject to damage suits for violation of any contract and will continue to be if his "lockout" is a violation of a valid contract with a union.

There is no doubt that the majority opinion of the supreme court will have a salutary effect on picketing as it lately has been practiced in America. Here is how Justice Burton, who wrote the court's opinion in this case, describes what unhappily has become commonplace in labor disputes:

"Such pickets ... by force of numbers, threats of bodily harm to Russell and of damage to his property, prevented him from reaching the plant gates. At least one striker took hold of Russell's automobile. Some of the pickets stood or walked in front of his automobile in such a manner as to block the street and make it impossible for him, and others similarly situated, to enter the plant."

This is a familiar story. It happens usually with the sanction of union leaders.

CHIEF JUSTICE Warren isn't preoccupied with what unions must do to discipline their members and to abolish "goon" tactics. He is more concerned that the court's decision might hurt unions financially — which, of course, should be a deterrent in itself. He writes:

"By reason of vicarious liability for its members' ill-advised conduct on the picket lines, the union is to be subjected to a series of judgments that may and probably will reduce it to bankruptcy or at the very least deprive it of the means necessary to perform its role as bargaining agent of the employees it represents."

One wonders why the chief justice isn't as concerned with the plight of the employer against whom costly strikes are inflicted.

There has been quite a controversy lately about "right to work" laws in the various states. These would give the individual the right to join or not join a union and would prevent penalties being imposed against non-union workers. Most union leaders have opposed such laws and certain unions today are asking Congress to legalize a "closed shop" monopoly.

The latest Supreme Court decision would seem to imply that, even without "right to work" laws, citizens may sue a union for damages if deprived of a job. It's a privilege of citizenship inherent in the Constitution. But in recent years it has not even been accorded the respect of being termed a "civil right." Times may be changing.

French Savior?

By JAMES MARLOW

Charles de Gaulle has been so vague, or just confused, about what he'd do as French premier that his bid for power is like asking the French to buy a savior at midnight in a coalbin.

The French crisis—over his efforts to get into a spot to straighten things out—is one that has truly left the experts guessing if not gasping. And no wonder.

News that the Assembly had temporarily brushed De Gaulle aside early yesterday — by voting confidence in Premier Pierre Pflimlin — had barely cleared the wires in the country when a startling bulletin came rattling through.

This one said that Pflimlin, despite his victory in the Assembly, was thinking of quitting anyway, that could open the door wider for De Gaulle to become premier. But although Pflimlin submitted his resignation, it was rejected for the moment, and he agreed to continue in office until a new government is ready to take over.

The most notable feature of all the interpretations of the past two weeks — written or verbal — has been the lack of positiveness not only on whether De Gaulle could take or be given power again but what he'd do if he got it.

De Gaulle has wrapped himself in such a fog—first by his silence in recent years, and more lately by his fuzzy statements—that no one not in his inner councils could claim to know what he had in mind.

Inside Labor By Victor Riesel

An electronic spectre stalks the land. It haunts many a man working in the shopping centers across the country — especially in the supermarkets. Everywhere there is fear that the electric brain will replace the human hand. For once you leave the superhighways, you find we are a people of supermarkets. Crowded ones, too, despite all slump reports.

As I rolled past 1,000 miles of foodstuff spectaculars, I recalled a report made recently by James Suffridge, president of the AFL-CIO's Retail Clerks International Assn. in which he foresaw that:

"The housewife would be able to sit at home, place her order by electronic devices and be billed automatically." Mr. Suffridge feared a land of stores untouched by human hands.

"We are faced with the possibility of a practical, fully automatic food store, using a combination of electronic equipment and conveyor belts and virtually doing away with human labor."

Until I drove into this steel city,

I put Mr. Suffridge's predictions on a par with package vacation tours to the underside of the moon. Then I was told of the big Lever Bros. warehouse here, employing 900 workers, which supplies so many of our supermarkets. Now I have a healthy respect for the spectre haunting Brother Suffridge.

THERE IS a complex of continuous belts which moves the products, sorts them, stacks them and even piles them on pallets ready for shipment.

An "electronic brain" selects the order, puts it together and makes it ready for transfer to trucks. Mind you, at least 20 products are handled here. All leave the production line in sealed cases.

These products are sorted by a photoelectric cell. It scans the passing cases of soap and powder items. After checking them it distributes them according to product. The cell does this by counting a series of black streaks inked on the cardboard.

It works both ways in some warehouses. Material and products are taken from the receiving platform, sorted by a cell and distributed to 16 different stockrooms, awaiting a call from another cell which moves the stuff out again when it's time to get it to some store.

So we're not so far from Mr. Suffridge's stores of the future — which will, in turn, create a multi-billion dollar electronic machine business.

In his report to the AFL-CIO, Suffridge talks of one proposed store which provides each customer with a large metal key. The shopper will then insert the key into a slot in a display case. She will choose the food items, which are behind glass, by letter and number.

PURCHASES ARE automatically conveyed in a carton. The bill, which will always be with us, automation or not, is electronically computed. This report reveals that 60 items out of 154 foods can be assembled in a caron for delivery — in 30 seconds.

If the lady forgets some delicacy, she asks the clerk to press a button and it is automatically brought up. If she wants her pick of meats — in some stores this is already in operation — there is a system in which a beef loin, for example, enters a meat cutting section on a conveyor. A power saw cuts it into steaks of different thicknesses. Then the meat is put on a gravity conveyor to the wrapping areas. There, automatic wrapping machines adjust to the size of the cut of meat. Each item is pre-wrapped and bottom sealed.

A single operator can do 18 packages a minute. Then, by gravity, it is whizzed to the weighing station. There each package is weighed, priced and labeled — automatically.

THE AUTOMATION report reveals that there are automatic inventory machines which tell a shoe size and color of each pair in stock. There are automatic gas filling stations, which tank you up and bill you in one operation. There are post office machines which automatically read the addresses on the mail and route the envelopes.

Automation in the big mills is even more fabulous. There is no doubt that direct labor costs can be reduced up to 72 per cent. There is no doubt we'll all learn to live with the electronic cell.

Just how much room it will give us we'll all know when the Fourth International Automation Congress and Exposition — proclaimed by President Eisenhower — opens in New York on June 9.

Keep your eye on that electric eye.

Manners MAKE FRIENDS

Sometimes an implied criticism hurts just as much as an outspoken one. For instance, the person who says, "You look a hundred per cent better with your hair short" isn't just telling you she likes your hair short. She is saying that you looked pretty awful with it long.

Watch your compliments to be sure they don't carry a hidden sting.

Guarding Your Health

By Dr. EDWIN P. JORDAN

Sunstroke

A letter from Mrs. R. raises the interesting subject of hazards from too much exposure to the sun. Incidentally, this applies to adults as well as to youngsters.

She writes that her 13-year-old son has suffered from exposure to the sun in two different summers. He suffers each time from aches and pains and with a fever of an average of 102 degrees. The amount of exposure was apparently for four hours at 80 degrees.

There are two principal reactions to too much exposure to the sun. The two conditions are commonly called sunstroke and heat exhaustion. Both are serious and in both prevention is better than treatment.

When sunstroke is most serious, the result is complete loss of consciousness. The face develops a peculiar red flush and the skin is hot and dry.

Fever sometimes up to 109 degrees or more may be present. Both the pulse (heart rate) and breathing are abnormal. It is a highly dangerous condition.

If the victim can be kept alive for two days recovery is probable. However, one attack increases the susceptibility to heat in the future. In sunstroke the normal methods which the body has of maintaining its heat regulation seem to be entirely upset. It calls for prompt and even radical treatment.

Heat exhaustion is a less severe reaction to hot sun or excessive heat. It is related to sunstroke and shades gradually into the more serious condition. However, most physicians differentiate between heat exhaustion and sunstroke because the latter is so much more dangerous.

In heat exhaustion, the principal symptoms are dizziness, excessive sweating, decrease in the amount of urine, a feeling of great weakness, paleness and a speeded pulse and rapid breathing.

Victims of heat exhaustion do not usually lose consciousness. Sometimes muscles of the abdomen or the limbs develop pain or cramp-like nature. The mouth temperature is likely to be below normal or only slightly raised.

Heat exhaustion tends to come on much more slowly than sunstroke. Headache, loss of appetite, constipation and muscular weakness may precede for several days the development of characteristic symptoms.

Rest in a cool place for quite a long time may be enough to take care of heat exhaustion, but other measures are often desirable.

Mrs. R.'s son probably suffered from heat exhaustion. He is doubtless more susceptible than the average and every effort should be made to protect him from excessive exposure to the sun in the future.

Winona

The Methodists will be back in their church Sunday following the remodeling and addition to their building. It will be Loyalty Sunday.

Both the Friends Church and the Methodist Church will honor their graduates in the morning worship service Sunday.

There will be no evening service at the Friends Church Sunday so all can attend the baccalaureate service at Salem.

The Daily Vacation Bible School of Winona begins June 9 and concludes June 18. The hours are 9 to 11:30 a.m. Classes are for all children four years of age through the eighth grade.

REV. AND MRS. MARTIN Brantingham recently spent two days with their son, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brantingham of Warren.

Mrs. Icie Hendershott spent a few days at the home of her daughter, Mr. and Mrs. David Miller of East Canton and attended a Mother-Daughter banquet.

Larry Dusenberry is home for a vacation.

On Friday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Weaver entertained thirty guests. This was a double social event being a birthday party for his father, Charles Weaver of Akron and a bridal shower for his sister, Mrs. Walter Sayre, the former Faye Weaver, of Akron.

The evening was spent playing games and opening gifts. Mrs. Eugene Flint assisted the hostess in serving refreshments.

Mrs. Russell Whinery of Salem is a patient at Salem City Hospital.

News of the World in Pictures

WATER LILIES IN CYPRESS GARDENS—The widely-known Aquamaids from Cypress Gardens, Fla., smile prettily over their shoulders as they ski past the vantage point of the photographer, who also gets a quick ski-in-the-air salute.

HE DRAWS INTEREST OF KIDS—Dee Wollem, a former guitar player, breezed into Cincinnati, O., to teach youngsters how to become "gun slingers." Wollem, who claims to be the "fastest gun alive," represents a gun manufacturer. In a California competition, he drew and fired in .13 of a second, said to be the fastest such feat on record.

HOMAGE TO NUMBER ONE—The people of Medellin, Colombia, have enshrined Engine Number One on a pedestal of concrete for its service on the railroad for 53 years. The nation is now completing a modern system of railroad networks.

CALL HIM 'KU-KI'—Thirty miles outside Barcelona, in the mountains of Spain, dogs have guarded a spot where a road and railway cross. The trains were discontinued, but the dog guard remained. His sign tells passing motorists, "Call me Ku-Ki."

SUN FUN FOR TWO—Diane Jacks and Tom Cook don't think of swimming or the beach when summer comes. Instead they spend time on a rink in Sun Valley.

Power Line Poles Take to the Air

WORK CREWS for a gas and electric company had the job of setting up 59 power poles at elevations ranging up to 4,300 feet in the Santa Barbara, Calif., area. They called on a helicopter to help them out. A 12-passenger 'copter did the work in two days. Maneuvering the poles into position took a sense of timing as fine as that of a top-grade actor. The big aircraft, with a 4,000-pound capacity, picked up the power line poles at a staging point. A rope sling on each pole was attached to a hook on a steel cable suspended from the helicopter. A foreman, lying on the helicopter's cargo deck, talked to the pilot by radio and instructed him in maneuvering craft. Ground crews guided poles into place.

The helicopter lifts up one of the power poles for its trip across the peaks.

At its destination, the plane lowers pole into place.

SMOOTH SAILING AHEAD—Kentucky's lakes and streams offer wide expanses for sailing, a sport which has become increasingly popular throughout the state. Many docks in the areas around the lakes rent such craft for enthusiasts of sailing.

Winona Methodists To Attend Enlarged Church on Sunday

The congregation of the Winona Methodist Church will meet for the first time Sunday morning in their newly constructed education building and remodeled sanctuary. The Rev. Hubert Adey is the pastor.

The new addition and the present building are finished in light gray brick. The improvements, which cost approximately $65,000, have nearly doubled the church's overall space. Robert Beatty of East Liverpool was the architect.

The west side basement and classrooms above the basement were enlarged. Another story was added over the present basement on the north side for a church parlor, an overflow annex, a nursery and classrooms. The sanctuary was refinished and a new chancel erected.

Ground was broken for the confabulation of Guilford Grange were used for church services for the past four months.

THE ONE TRUE NATIONAL ADVERTISING MEDIUM IS

THE DAILY NEWSPAPER . . . because
88% of America's families get a newspaper every day. That's national coverage!
Over 100 million people read a newspaper on an average day. Every one of these readers has the opportunity to see every advertisement in the newspaper. Only a few of these people can be reached by any radio, television or magazine message.

Unlike television and radio, newspaper advertising is always ready and waiting to suit the time, place and convenience of the consumer. The newspaper is always selling — and always selling to more people than any other medium.
If you want to sell more products to more people, use the daily newspaper — the one true national advertising medium.

150,000 to Be on Hand For Indianapolis '500'

33 Top Drivers Entered in Race

Jimmy Bryan Seems To Be 'Man to Beat'

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Jimmy Bryan, a throttle-tromping dead-eye from Arizona, seems the driver of destiny in what may be the fastest "500" ever over the Indianapolis Motor Speedway's famed "brickyard" Friday.

The usual "countless 150,000 witnesses will be on hand, in both a picnic and Roman circus mood as death lurks around every turn.

When the 33 fastest drivers in speedway history respond to track President Tony Hulman's command at 10:52 a.m., EST "Gentlemen, start your engines." Bryan will be purring in the third row.

But this 31-year-old racer from Phoenix, making his seventh Memorial Day race start, is driving the horizontal-engined Beloit special which won the 500 last year for Sam Hanks. Bryan finished third last year.

In this roaring, dizzy 200-lap test around the 2½-mile brick and asphalt track, Bryan must overhaul some pretty good drivers and some pretty snappy cars. Fair and warm weather is predicted.

In pole position as the 11 rows of 3 cars per row make the heart-stopping roar into the first turn is Miami's Dick Rathmann in a McNamara special which set a qualifying record of 145.974 m.p.m.

Completing the first row are Ed Elisian, Oakland, Calif., who set a one-lap mark of 146.508, and Jimmy Reece, Indianapolis, both driving Zink specials.

The second row includes the only former champion entered, Johnnie Parsons of Van Nuys, Calif., winner of the 1950 rain-shortened race, driving a flat-engine Gerhardt.

Bryan certainly has the know-how to master the "brickyard" and the field which includes eight rookies.

Winner of the triple A and USAC big car titles three of the past four years, Bryan won the first 500-mile race at Monza, Italy, last year. The cigar-chomping Bryan races with a case of spare stogies attached to his cockpit.

Last year's 500 winner, 43-year-old Hanks will be on the sidelines watching, as director of racing for the speedway, for the likely shattering of the race record of 135.601 m.p.h. set last Memorial Day.

The contingent of daredevil newcomers is headed by the races youngest driver, A. J. Foyt, 23, of Tucson, Ariz., his 12th qualifying spot was the highest for a rookie. Foyt is driving a built Dean special, driven to victory at Monza by Bryan.

In the fifth row will be the "grand daddy" of the 500, Paul Russo, oldest man in the field at 44 and making his 12th start. Twice a runnerup, Russo undoubtedly will be the crowd's sentimental favorite as he pilots his Novi special. In last year's race, Russo led for 24 laps, winding up fourth.

Driving skill is one thing, but durability of the mechanized thoroughbreds which snarl through lap after lap is another. Last year, only 17 of the 33 starters finished.

Gallant Man, Bold Ruler to Run at Belmont

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the top horse races of the year is in prospect Friday at Belmont Park when Bold Ruler and Gallant Men, two old rivals, meet along with eight others in the $50,000-added Carter Handicap.

Bold Ruler, the 1957 horse of the year owned by the Wheatley Stable, faces a formidable task with a high weight of 135 pounds in the 7-furlongs sprint. Since the Carter was inaugurated in 1895, only one horse—Tom Fool in 1953—has won with 135 pounds.

This will be their first meeting since Bold Ruler beat Gallant Man, owned by Ralph Lowe, and the Kerr Stable's Round Table in the Trenton Handicap last November at Garden State.

Gallant Man carries 128 pounds, and is making his initial start of the season. Bold Ruler won the Toboggan Handicap here May 17 with 133 pounds, in his 1958 racing debut. Both colts, now 4, were idle with injuries since last year.

The Carter is noted for its upsets and there are plenty of light-weighted horses capable of winning.

Among them is the Portersville, which won last year with 111 pounds, beating the top-weighted Dedicate with 126. Portersville again carries 111.

Clem and Admiral Vee, both with 116, can do the job. Lofty Peak has 114; Tenacious and Tick Tock, 113; Mr. Turf, 111; and Busher Fantasy, 107.

Ayala Upsets Cooper In French Tournament

PARIS (AP) — Luis Ayala of Chile rallied Friday to upset top-seeded Ashley Cooper of Australia in the semifinals of the French International Tennis Championships. The scores were 9-11, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2, 7-5.

Ayala will meet another Australian, Mervyn Rose, in the final. Rose ousted Jackie Brichant of Belgium, 10-8, 6-1, 6-3.

Shirley Bloomer of England and Suzy Kormoczi of Hungary reached the women's singles final.

Patterson Rejects $250,000 Offer To Fight Harris

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The president of Texas Boxing Enterprises, Inc., said Thursday the manager of World Heavyweight Boxing Champion Floyd Patterson has turned down a $250,000 offer for a title fight here this summer with Roy Harris.

Meyer Rex Braun said he received a telegram Thursday morning from Cus D'Amato, Patterson's manager.

"There's nothing we can do now," Braun said. He added, however, that negotiations have not been terminated.

"We made the man an offer and he turned it down," Braun said. "It's as simple as that."

Patterson is scheduled to start intensive training Monday for a title defense, the nature of which has not been announced.

Harris, the Cut and Shoot, Tex., school teacher who was discharged from the Army May 15, is ranked No. 5 among heavy-weight contenders. He has an undefeated record in 21 professional fights.

In New York, D'Amato said: "The only thing I can say is no comment. I am working on several different matches and I wouldn't want to deny or confirm any of them at this time."

Ray Norton, Morrow to Vie In California

MODESTO, Calif. (AP) — Olympic spring champion Bobby Morrow, who already has lost once this year to fleet California Ray Norton, tests his foe again Saturday night over a faster track at the California Relays.

This shapes up as the biggest race in the career of the 20-year-old Norton, a junior at San Jose State College, who earlier this year joined the group of those sharing the world record of 9.3 seconds in the 100-yard dash.

Morrow, the Texan from Abilene Christian College, raced Norton at the Los Angeles Coliseum Relays and lost by a foot in 9.7 over a slow grass track.

Entered against Morrow and Norton are such specialists as the University of California's Willie White, who also holds a victory over Morrow; Orlando Hazley of Oklahoma State, Mike Agostini of Fresno State, and Bill Woodhouse, Abilene Christian.

The sprinters share the top billing with Australian miler Herb Elliott who ran a 3:57.8 in the Coliseum Relays, the second fastest time ever run, and a crack trio of hurdlers.

The special 220-yard low hurdles includes Ansel Robinson of Fresno State, who tied the official world record of 22.2, and Elias Gilbert of Winston-Salem, N. C., Teachers College, who smashed it with a 22.1. Gilbert's teammate, Fran Washington, was inches behind in that record-breaking run.

Vienna Enters Bidding For '64 Olympic Games

VIENNA (AP)—Vienna Thursday entered the bidding for the 1964 summer Olympic Games.

Mayor Franz Jonas advised the Austrian Olympic Committee that it wants the games and is prepared to meet expenditures of approximately $1,200,000. He asked the committee to forward the Danube city's proposal to the International Olympic Committee.

Ball Game Postponed Because of Elephants

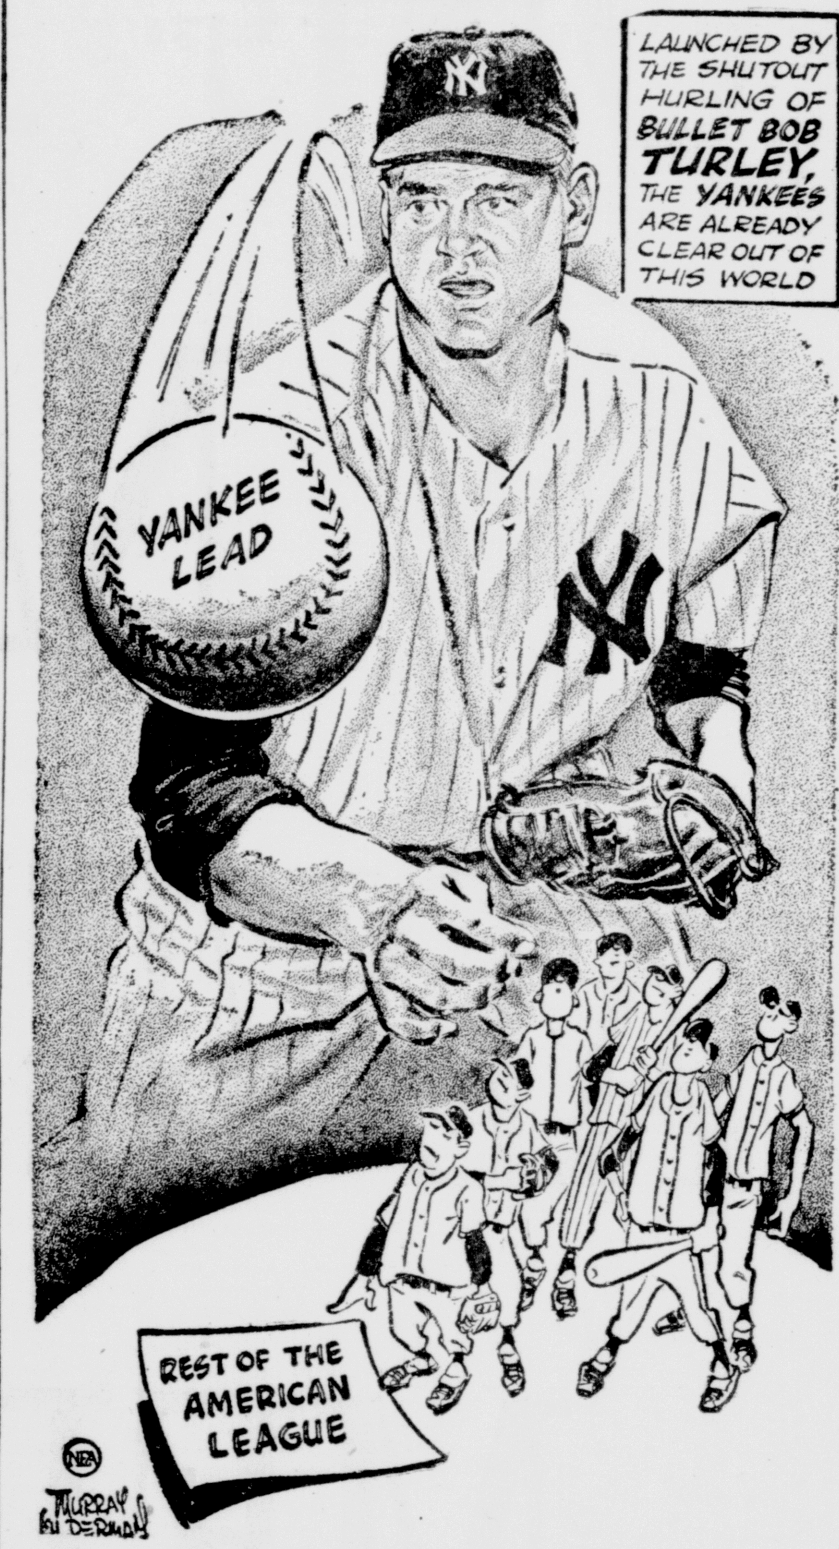

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (AP)—A minor league baseball game was postponed Wednesday night on account of elephants.

Players of the South End Jets and the South End Maple Leafs arrived at Peterborough Exhibition Grounds to find an elephant herd prowling the playing field.

Reason: A circus is performing nearby and the elephants are using the baseball field between shows.

Keep Living!

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—On Memorial Day you might as well put the moral at the start: "Keep living!"

The purpose of the dead is for us to be. They ran out of breath for us.

On this day of national recognition of mortality, time gives us a pause. This pause gives us time to reflect. We jubilee the past and hold a heart-omg for the dear dead.

Memorial Day is an opportunity. It is an opportunity to admire our stars. There under known stars they glimmer unknown forever. They put us here. It is a day to honor a husband, brother, son, or friend, dead or away—and absence is a form of death.

The whole problem of Memorial Day is one of transportation. You are transported by your loyalties and remembrance.

Life hesitates. The eternal growth of ambition is reduced to a grumble. Yet a son, as he sheds a tear on the grave of his father, wants to step farther and be buried near.

Here on the hill of a moment, a humanity afraid of itself flies the flag all people salute—the one that waves for the ones who went before.

It would be nice on Memorial Day if neither the dead nor the living were altogether alone.

Mrs. Cox and her husband, Marion Cox, moved from Salem to Phoenix in 1954 and are now residing in Cave Creek. Mrs. Cox taught in the biology department of Salem High School for 34 years and is author of the textbook, "Exploring Biology," the fourth edition of which is now being used in SIS biology classes. It is recognized as one of the most popular biology textbooks ever presented to American schools.

A graduate of Salem High School Class of 1916, and of Wooster College, Mrs. Cox received her master's degree at the University of Chicago.

Mr. Lisonbee also is a teacher with many years experience in the fields of science. He is chairman of the science department at Camelback High School and assists in writing biology sections of college examinations.

The authors of "Your Biology" have written their book in a simple form, with scientific terms kept to a minimum and fully explained when first used. They have included many colorful pictures to make the book attractive and informative.
